

Equity and Diversity Student Ambassadors Are Now Accepting applications for the 2014-2015 Academic Year

Who we are: The Equity and Diversity (ED) Student Ambassadors work alongside the division of Equity, Diversity, and Global Outreach as volunteer student leaders. The ED Ambassadors facilitate student diversity training and education through planning educational programs, supporting student organizations, promoting leadership development, and helping to build community among students, particularly women, LGBTQ, people of color, religious groups, veterans, international students, refugee status, ability, social class and age.

ED Ambassadors strive to cultivate student leaders who are focused on the issues of social justice and bettering their communities through education and programing events:

- Assist with the development and implementation of programs in education and leadership (such as Community of Respect and classroom presentations)
- Assist with a variety of activities and events during theme weeks/months to promote awareness and appreciation (Such as Women's week, Native American Heritage, etc...)
- Assist with the development of programs, trainings, and workshops and other leadership/support opportunities focused on issues related to diversity

Qualifications:

You must be a student in good academic standing with a minimum cumulative of 2.5 GPA or better; must be knowledgeable about a variety of social justice issues, as they relate to: women, LGBTQ, people of color, religious groups, veterans, international students, ability, social class and age. Successful candidates must have an appreciation for working in the area of equity and diversity; must make a commitment to meet twice a month for training and preparation for programing. Student leaders must also demonstrate ability to follow through with ideas and initiatives. Be willing to learn!
