COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE, FOOD SYSTEMS, AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Encouraging and rewarding academic achievement

NDSU NORTH DAKOTA
STATE UNIVERSITY

The College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources at North Dakota State University provides one of the best college-based scholarship programs in the Upper Midwest. Colleges of Agriculture around the country frequently have excellent scholarship programs because our alumni and the industries we support understand the value of investing in students.

Many scholarships range from $800 to $2,000 per year. Some students receive one or more scholarships every year of their college career, depending on the student's academic performance. The college selectively matches several of its scholarships for gifted incoming freshmen with scholarships administered by the Office of Admission.

Funds* for scholarships are provided by individuals, companies, foundations and organizations that are aware of the commitment a student must make to complete a college education. They established these scholarships to encourage students who are enrolled in the College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources to pursue academic excellence. Scholarship recipients and donors are recognized at a luncheon held on campus each fall.

The scholarships and awards listed in this booklet are divided into two categories:

College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources General Scholarships — awarded to students enrolled in the college, regardless of their major program of study.

Program Scholarships — awarded through departments or other academic units in the college to students enrolled in their specific academic programs.

Am I eligible?

You are eligible to be considered for a College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources scholarship if you are enrolled as a student in the college according to the Office of Registration and Records. Eligibility and awards are contingent on sustained enrollment in the college as a full-time student in good standing through the semester(s) during which the scholarships are disbursed. Scholarships in excess of $900 will be split with half disbursed at the beginning of fall semester and the remaining amount disbursed at the beginning of spring semester contingent on your sustained enrollment in the College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources. Scholarships with a value less than $900 will be disbursed at the beginning of fall semester. If a student is awarded a scholarship that is split between the semesters but is only enrolled as a full-time student during one of the semesters, the student will be awarded half of the scholarship during the semester in which he/she is enrolled as a full-time student. Students who do not sustain enrollment in the College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources through the semester in which the funds are disbursed may be asked to return all, or part of, their scholarship.

Most scholarships are awarded based on scholastic merit, while a few are awarded based upon a combination of scholastic merit and financial need. Some scholarships have specific eligibility qualifications. These qualifications are listed with the scholarships in this booklet.

*All funds must be deposited in the NDSU Foundation and Alumni Association in order to be recognized as part of the scholarship program. They act as custodian of the funds and distribute them as authorized by the College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources.

Current and transfer students are awarded scholarships primarily on the basis of academic performance.

The College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources Scholarship Committee selects recipients for the general scholarships. Recipients are notified in May. If a scholarship is declined, a new recipient is chosen from a list of alternates. Program scholarships are awarded through selection procedures established by the individual departments or academic units.
