Tasty, Healthful Meals on a Budget

Week 4: Planned-over Food Tips, Menus and Recipes

Planning menus, shopping for foods and using your leftovers wisely can pay off in many ways. Your family can enjoy healthy meals with lots of variety, and you can stretch your budget.

This is the fourth in a series of publications to help you eat well but spend less at the grocery store. It includes sample menus and recipes that you can adapt to meet your family’s tastes. It also includes creative ways to make use of your leftovers, which become “planned-overs.”

Turn Leftovers into “Planned-overs”

“Leftovers” often have a bad reputation. They may get forgotten in the back of your refrigerator and later thrown out. Instead of letting them go to waste, turn extra food items into planned-overs. Consider these ideas for making good use of extra food:

- Planned-over whole roast chicken: Shred it, add some mayonnaise and chopped celery and use it to make sandwiches. Add some salsa and use it for chicken tacos. Simmer it with barbecue sauce and make sandwiches. Make some chicken-vegetable soup.
- Planned-over spaghetti sauce with meat: Use it to make lasagna or homemade pizza, or freeze it for a quick dinner later.
- Planned-over roast beef: Use it to make soup, stew or stir-fry. Shred it, add some barbecue sauce and serve it on buns.

Stretch Your Food Dollar$

Be aware of your habits in your kitchen to avoid letting food go to waste. Check (✔) the statements that are true of you.

- I keep my cabinets and refrigerator organized.
- I rarely buy duplicates of food I already have because I keep track of what I have on hand.
- I keep a grocery list handy so I can jot down what I need the next time I go to the grocery store.
- I pay attention to the amount of food, such as overripe fruit or spoiled food, I throw away.
- When I compare prices of different sizes of food products, I consider the product with the amount I can use in a reasonable amount of time.

Think about the items you marked and the ones you did not mark. The above ideas are practices that may stretch your food dollars.
Handle Planned-overs Safely

Large quantities of planned-over perishable food can become a food safety issue if they are not cooled promptly. Most foods, including meat, casseroles, rice, beans, baked potatoes, cooked vegetables, and cut-up fruit and vegetables, are perishable. Perishable foods should spend no more than two hours at room temperature.

- Divide large amounts of leftovers into small, shallow containers for quick cooling. Slice meat into smaller pieces. Thick foods, such as stew, should be no more than 2 inches deep in a shallow container.
- Freeze planned-overs in recipe-sized portions. Label the container with the date and type of food.
- Use refrigerated planned-over foods within a few days.
- Reheat gravy and meat to 165 degrees Fahrenheit.

What’s Your MyPlate Plan?

You can find the latest nutrition recommendations at www.choosemyplate.gov.

Each person has different needs based on gender, age and level of physical activity. Learn what each of your family members needs at his or her particular calorie levels by visiting the website or contacting your local Extension agent for “MyPlate Plans” handouts for different age groups. The MyPlate Plans are available online at https://www.ag.ndsu.edu/publications/food-nutrition/myplate-plans-for-adults.

Size up your portions with these visual clues.

As shown, one-half of a baseball is the same size as ½ cup mashed potatoes.

Enjoy Family Mealtimes

Eating is a source of enjoyment. Families who spend time together at meals eat more healthfully. Children who enjoy family meals are more likely to do well in school. They are more likely to avoid risky behavior, such as smoking and drinking, too.

Slow down and enjoy family mealtimes. Your brain takes about 20 minutes to get the signal that your stomach is full. If you eat too quickly, you may eat more than you need before your brain tells you to stop.

1. Spend about 30 minutes planning your weekly menus. Use the sale ads and write a shopping list. Keep the list in a handy spot.
2. Avoid shopping when you’re hungry or tired. Almost everything looks tasty when you’re hungry. If you’re tired, you may be likely to grab convenience foods, which cost more and often are less nutritious.
3. Avoid using a credit card for food purchases unless you intend to pay off the balance each month. You may end up adding credit card interest rates onto the food cost.
4. Shop in one or two stores. Consider your gas, too. If you drive to several stores for special deals, it may not be a “deal.”
5. Be familiar with the store layout. Only go down the aisles that include items on your list.
6. For quick shopping trips, shop the perimeter of the store. Most staples, such as milk, fresh produce and bread, are around the perimeter.
7. Compare store brands with national brands and choose the one with the lower price. Most store brands are similar in quality to name brands, but lower in price.
8. Clip coupons, but only for the things you need. Some stores double the value of coupons to a certain point.
9. Compare price using “unit prices.” The unit pricing on the front edge of shelving helps you know quickly whether the regular-priced super-sized package is a better deal than the sale-priced regular-sized package.
10. Check your receipt and change. Although mistakes are not intentional, they can happen. Look carefully at your receipt to be sure you received the sale price.
