Please note: Eligibility requirements have changed for the 2015-16 Diversity Impact Award. The award will no longer be given to individuals. Instead, the selection committee will now only consider group nominations; examples of eligible nominees include NDSU departments, committees, student groups, etc.

Please check the specific area(s) wherein the Nominees demonstrate a significant contribution to advancing diversity through positive interactions with others and a respect and value for differing backgrounds and points of view within and/or external to NDSU.

☐ Institutional Commitment

- Create an environment where everyone feels welcome, respected, and safe.

☐ Learning and Pedagogy

- Develop a learning environment that guides students, faculty, and staff to think critically about social justice issues in the classroom and workplace.

☐ Research and Creative Activity

- Engage in research and creative activity that reflect multicultural values and perspectives.

☐ Recruitment and Retention of Historically Underrepresented Students, Faculty, and Staff

- Increase the representation of historically underrepresented populations among faculty, staff, students, and administrators.

☐ Inter-group and Intra-group Relations

- Celebrate human differences and recognize socially constructed differences through initiatives that encourage and support the continuing interaction of diverse cultures.

Attach a typed summary and at least one additional letter of support explaining how the Nominees have demonstrated the criteria checked above and why they should be considered for the 2015-16 NDSU Diversity Impact Award.

Submit completed nominations by 12pm on Friday, February 5 to Diversity Impact Award Committee, c/o Kara Gravley-Stack, Equity & Diversity Center, Alba Bales House.
