This award recognizes NDSU departments, committees, groups, and units who advance the work of inclusion. Individuals are not eligible for this recognition.

Please check the specific area(s) wherein the Unit Nominee demonstrates a significant contribution to advancing diversity through positive interactions with others and a respect and value for differing backgrounds and points of view within and/or external to NDSU.

Institutional Commitment

Creating an environment where everyone feels welcome, respected, and safe.

Learning and Pedagogy

Developing learning environments and curricula that guide students, faculty, and staff to think critically about issues of equity in the classroom and beyond.

Research and Creative Activity

Engaging in research and/or creative activity that ethically and intentionally engages multiple perspectives and/or a diversity of people in all parts of the process (i.e. planning, methods, assessment/analysis, and dissemination).

Recruitment and Retention of Historically Underrepresented Students, Faculty, and Staff

Increasing and retaining historically underrepresented populations among faculty, staff, students, and administrators. Embracing the complexity of multiplicity by ensuring the implementation of equitable practices in recruitment and retention efforts, especially those focused on underrepresented groups (e.g. women in STEM, men in nursing, indigenous faculty and staff, etc.)

Inter-group and Intra-group Relations

Celebrating human diversity and recognizing socially constructed differences through initiatives that encourage and support the continuing interaction of diverse cultures in ways that transcend tolerance.

Attach a typed summary and at least one additional letter of support explaining how the Nominees have demonstrated the criteria checked above and why they should be considered for the NDSU Advancing Inclusion Award.

Submit completed nominations to Julie Nash, Old Main 100C or julie.nash@ndsu.edu.
