High school students in North Dakota are now able to take dual-credit classes online through NDSU’s Office of Teaching and Learning. Students from all other states may take these courses, but must enroll as an early-entry student.

We currently have 17 classes with more in development. These dual-credit classes are selected to offer exploratory experiences and to help students meet college course requirements. School districts, educators, and parents are encouraged to review the list of classes to help students determine which classes fit with their student's high school requirements as well as the student's area of interest.

ELIGIBILITY

If you are a student in a North Dakota high school, who is enrolled in grades 10, 11, and 12 and have permission from your school’s administrator, you are eligible to take dual-credit courses through NDSU. We recommend you have a GPA of 3.0 or higher. If you are interested in dual credit you should first speak with your high school counselor or teachers to determine your academic readiness to participate in a college-level class. Your high school counselor or teacher will assist you in getting enrolled in a dual-credit course.

If you are from any other state and are interested in these dual-credit courses at NDSU, please check with your school counselor or teacher to determine if you are eligible. Requirements may vary for each state. Eligible out-of-state students, will apply as an early-entry student, but will receive the same tuition rate.
