The Office of Teaching and Learning can support you in improving your teaching practice to increase student learning. The instructional coaching program is designed to provide you with teaching strategies, tips, and encouragement to continue to grow in your role as an instructor, no matter where you are at in your career.

If you are struggling, don’t lose hope. Our coaches are a safe, confidential support system for you.

Instructional coaching isn’t just for individuals who are having teaching challenges. We provide assistance even if you already have a well-designed class but want to learn more engaging teaching methods or strengthen your assessments. Our coaches can assist you and your program in identifying goals and strategies that take your class or program to a new level.

WORK WITH AN INSTRUCTIONAL COACH
Our instructional coaches offer one-on-one consultations with NDSU instructors and departments. Each coaching session provides personalized guidance to support effective teaching at NDSU.

PROCESS
1. Request a consultation
2. The instructional coach that best meets your needs will contact you within 2 days to set up an initial consultation.
3. Your instructional coach will listen to what you are trying to achieve, ask questions to gain more information, and offer ideas.
4. Additional meetings may be scheduled as needed.

Instructional coaching is a FREE, personalized, and confidential service.
