

4e Farmstead Archaeological Field School Summer 2024

Who: Anyone interested in doing archaeology! All majors welcome! No prior experience? No problem!

What: NDSU Archaeological Field School (Earn 3 credits over the summer!)

This archaeological project focuses on early farming in the Red River Valley and is located on a division of the original Dalrymple Bonanza Farm. Learn archaeological field and lab methodologies: excavation, mapping, record keeping, photogrammetry, and artifact processing, identification, and cataloging. Work with museum personnel to update an exhibit on local Bonanza farms. Help develop a better understanding of how early white settlers lived in the Dakota Territory.

Students will enroll for ANTH 496: Field Experience. This is a 3 credit course. No prior experience is needed!

When: M-F, 9am-5pm; May 28th – June 28th Reach out to inquire about schedule accommodations.

Students are expected to be on-site or in the lab (depending on the class schedule) from M-F 9am-5pm for the entire 5 weeks of the field school. However, reasonable scheduling accommodations can be made (e.g., you have a job or another class). Please reach out to kristen.fellows@ndsu.edu with any questions regarding schedules.

Where: 4e Winery (near Casselton, ND) and Archaeological Labs at NDSU

Our archaeological site is approximately 25 minutes from NDSU's campus. Ride shares can be arranged for students without cars. We will also occasionally be working at Bonanzaville and will take a few fieldtrips.

Apply Now! Fill out the google form app by following this QR code (or go to: <https://forms.gle/zU4YEVmNw6ZPeoB57>). Applications are considered as they come in, but only 15 students will be accepted. Apply soon!

For more information email: Dr. Fellows at kristen.fellows@ndsu.edu

