Getting involved on campus

September is a great time for students to get involved on campus. There are countless opportunities to develop professional and social relationships, be introduced to new ideas and different cultures and apply coursework through co-curricular involvement. Research shows involved students are more successful in their courses and have a better overall college experience. With more than 300 student organizations and other leadership opportunities available, there is something for everyone.

The Student Activities Office in the Memorial Union offers a variety of programs and services to help students get involved. Programs are designed to enhance educational experiences, increase student skills and develop leadership abilities. Student Activities Office staff members help students choose campus activities that are the best fit.

Visit the Student Activities Office at www.ndsu.edu/mu or call 701-231-7787 for more information.

- Student Support Services seeks to increase the retention and graduation rates of eligible students by providing services, such as academic guidance, mentoring, tutoring, course instruction, accessible tutoring rooms and academic success workshops.
- The McNair Scholars Program looks for undergraduates who have a strong desire to earn their doctoral degree. The program provides stipends up to $3,200, travel funds to attend TRIO conferences or visit a graduate school, research opportunities with faculty and library mentors and seminars on graduate school preparation.
- Veterans Educational Training is a state-funded program for veterans who want to pursue higher education.
- Upward Bound is a pre-college preparatory program that builds skills necessary for success in high school and continued success in post-secondary education.

Visit www.ndsu.edu/trio or call 701-231-8028 for more information.
Academic advising

Planning ahead is a key to college success, and although the semester is only half completed, students should start thinking about spring semester. Faculty and staff members serve as advisers, helping decide which courses students should take. They also assist with career planning and how to use university resources. NDSU students should meet with their advisers this month to plot course schedules for the next semester. Adviser assignments can be found on Campus Connection.

Tutoring services

Academic Collegiate Enhancement is a free academic support program available to all enrolled undergraduate students. ACE offers tutoring for more than 100 NDSU courses and has numerous group and individual quiet study spaces tailored to various learning styles.

Safety on campus

The Fargo-Moorhead community has one of the lowest violent crime rates in the country. Although few crimes are reported at NDSU each year, a well-informed student body helps ensure a safe campus. Police officers from the University Police and Safety Office provide round-the-clock vehicle patrol all year and public safety officers conduct foot patrols each evening. In an emergency, students can use any of the emergency blue lights found across campus. NDSU regularly offers informational training opportunities related to safety and security throughout the academic year.

NDSU police or public safety officers also provide a campus safety escort service by offering walking or vehicle transport for students, faculty and staff to NDSU facilities or locations adjacent to campus.

NDSU Personal Safety + Security Assist

This service includes the smartphone app Pathlight™ that allows NDSU police to monitor your status remotely when you initiate a safety assist on your device. You set your destination and approximate travel time in the app, and dispatchers will quickly respond if you don't arrive within the given timeframe or you activate a silent alarm with the swipe of a finger.

Campus emergency notification system

In the event of a threatening emergency, alerts are sent by one or more methods:

- email
- emergency voice messages to a cell or landline phone through Assurance NM
- a recorded information phone line (231-INFO)
- audio/video interruption of campus TVs

NDSU’s homepage will redirect you to emergency information. Students sign up for NotiFind via Campus Connection. Student employees are automatically enrolled and update their information with the Human Resources/Payroll Office. NDSU does not provide the ability for parents and others to receive these messages directly. However, when reasonably able to do so during an emergency, NDSU will post emergency updates on its homepage.
What about my student’s finances?

Now is the time to start planning ahead financially for next year. The Financial Aid and Scholarships Office provides students information and access to financial aid programs that enable them to pursue their educational objectives at NDSU. The specialized services are sensitive to student needs with emphasis on quality, accuracy and efficiency.

Who should complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid?

Any student requesting financial assistance from NDSU should complete the FAFSA at www.fafsa.gov. For priority consideration, we recommend students submit the FAFSA electronically to the processor no later than Feb. 1 to ensure processing by April 15. The Pell Grant and Direct loan programs are not subject to this deadline date.

Living away from home

Your student’s living environment can have a profound impact on their personal and educational development. The residence halls at NDSU provide a clean, comfortable and affordable home for students where the pursuit of academic success is encouraged and supported. On-campus living offers a chance to make new friends and become part of a learning-focused community. The Department of Residence Life supports students by providing a vibrant, healthy place to live and learn. Your student’s living environment will create new freedoms and responsibilities. Listen openly as your student navigates new relationships and develops their own schedule for living independently.

Each fraternity and sorority at NDSU is unique in its history, philanthropic charity and rituals. They all value leadership, scholarship, service and friendship. Members are proud of their organization and build friendships and pride throughout the entire Fraternity and Sorority Life at NDSU community.

Student Success

“Student success” is a concept that gets a lot of attention at NDSU, especially in Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Prevention Programs. The misuse of alcohol and other drugs is a well-documented barrier to student success, one that can be perpetuated by misperceptions about substance use. We invite parents, as critical partners in supporting the personal, academic and professional potential of our NDSU students, to engage their students in conversations about their success at NDSU.

Crucial conversations

Parents are encouraged to talk openly with their students about each other’s expectations for the college experience, including decisions about substance use. These conversations with your student are not always easy, but they are important and impactful. Most NDSU students report their parents have talked to them about alcohol use, and that their parents sharing expectations is an effective way for them to limit their own use.

Here are some quick pointers for getting the conversation going:

- Listen. Asking for their thoughts and hopes about college might be the best way to start this potentially difficult conversation.
- Be clear about your expectations regarding substance use. Help your student connect those behaviors with values and goals.
- Empower your student. Believe they have the ability to stand up for themselves and let them know how to make those independent choices.
- Be the example. Avoid sending mixed messages to your student. Evaluate your own use of alcohol and other drugs, and be sure you are modeling the type of behavior you would expect from your student.
- Know the law. It is illegal for persons under the age of 21 to consume or possess alcohol.
- Know NDSU’s policy. NDSU is a dry campus, and the policy is strictly enforced.

How can we be sure they are eating right?

NDSU Dining has three dining centers on campus that also are open to the public. This means you don’t need a meal plan to join your student for a meal. Five- and seven-day dining meal plans are offered. The five-day plan covers Monday-Friday; the seven-day plan also includes the weekend. Each meal plan comes with guest passes – three each semester for the five-day plan and seven per semester for the seven-day plan. Guest passes allow your student to bring a guest to a dining center. Students without a meal plan can use Campus Cash or a regular payment such as cash or credit to eat in the dining centers. Dining centers are open all day and each one offers a different menu. To find out the hours and which dining center is serving your student’s and your personal favorites, go to www.ndsu.edu/dining. In addition to the variety of items served on our menu, salad bars, sandwich bars, cereal bars and homemade soups also are available every day. NDSU Dining also provides accommodations for individuals with allergies or other special dietary needs. Coffee shops are located throughout campus, and a food court on the lower level of the Memorial Union offers additional options.

Are there employment opportunities for my student?

NDSU Dining offers opportunities to students who want a job. As one of the largest employers on campus, flexible hours are available for your student. Your student can go to any NDSU Dining location to ask about employment and our tuition grant program.

How is a meal plan cancelled or changed?

A request to cancel a meal plan must be received in writing on or before June 1 for fall semester and Dec. 1 for spring semester. Request forms are available from residence hall staff. Only non-first-year residents living in Niskanen or Mathew Living Learning Centers can cancel their meal plans. Late cancellations will only be accepted through the first Friday after classes start, and a $100 late fee will be assessed. Approved cancellations become effective the next semester (if received after the first Friday of classes). Cancellation of the room and license agreement automatically cancels the meal plan.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act

Parents and legal guardians of college students should understand the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, otherwise known as FERPA or the Buckley Amendment. FERPA affords students the following rights related to their education records:

- Right to inspect and review education records
- Right to seek to amend education records
- Right to have some control over the disclosure of information from education records
- Right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education.

FERPA allows for directory information to be released to third parties upon request unless a student has provided written consent to the university indicating otherwise. Directory information is generally not considered harmful or an invasion of privacy if disclosed. It includes, but is not limited to, student contact information, major, year in school, honors and awards, enrollment status and degree earned.

What rights do parents or legal guardians have with student records?

Education records are not automatically shared with third parties, including parents or legal guardians, except when the student has given written consent. However, FERPA provides certain exceptions for disclosures to third parties without student consent:

- School officials with legitimate educational interests
- Parents of a dependent student as defined by the IRS tax code and verified with tax records
- Federal or state authorities for research and evaluation purposes
- Compliance with a judicial order or subpoena
- Aid in a health or safety emergency
- Parent of student under 21 if the student has committed a violation of the institution's drug or alcohol policies.

NDSU’s annual notification of FERPA (student privacy) and FERPA Consent to Release Form are available at www.ndsu.edu/registrar. Questions or concerns regarding FERPA may be directed to the university registrar:
