

Public Engagements of Health and Medicine: Rhetorical Explorations

June 15-19 • Minard 118

Blake Scott, Professor of Writing and Rhetoric
Director of Undergraduate Programs
University of Central Florida, Orlando

The author of the book, “Risky Rhetoric: AIDS and the Cultural Practices of HIV Testing,” will emphasize the methodology and analytic tools to advance public discourse on issues that affect all of us. Students will engage in the rhetoric of health and medicine, focusing on patients, advocacy groups and other community health stakeholders.

As a group, the class will delve into two rhetorical inquiries – a new HIV prevention drug and breast cancer advocacy. Students will then analyze and rhetorically study a health or medical controversy of their own choosing.

For more information, visit www.ndsu.edu/english/summer_scholars.

North Dakota State University does not discriminate on the basis of age, color, disability, gender expression/identity, genetic information, marital status, national origin, public assistance status, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation or status as a U.S. veteran. Direct inquiries to the Vice President for Equity, Diversity, and Global Outreach, 102 Putnam Hall, (701) 231-7708.

NDSU

ENGLISH

Graduate Summer Scholars Seminar
NORTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY