

View this email in your browser

Wednesday, April 9, 2025

NDSU earns silver status Military Friendly School designation

The Military Friendly Schools designation is based on extensive research using public data, student veteran feedback and an institution's ability to meet key benchmarks in student retention, graduation rates, job placement and financial assistance for military-affiliated students.

---

Challey institute is a hub for interdisciplinary collaboration

The aim of the Sheila and Robert Challey Institute for Global Innovation and Growth is to advance understanding of innovation, trade, institutions and human potential to identify policies and solutions that enhance economic growth and opportunity in North Dakota and beyond.

Learn more

---

Interior design students gain skills and industry connections during design challenge

Students in the interior design program also tour design studios, architectural firms and product markets, meet industry professionals and complete internships that shape their education.

Learn more

---

Johns Hopkins professor to speak at Human Progress and Flourishing workshop

Phillip Phan, a nationally recognized scholar in healthcare innovation, will speak at NDSU on Friday, April 11. His talk, titled “An Honest Debate During Public Health Crises,” will be from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in Beckwith Recital and on Zoom.

Learn more

Celebrate entrepreneurs at NDSU's Possibility Showcase

Attendees will enjoy pitches and presentations from six student teams in the Possibility Fellowship, alongside innovative projects addressing real-world issues through the Problems to Possibilities program. It's slated for Tuesday, April 15 in the Oceti Sakowin Ballroom at the NDSU Memorial Union.

Learn more

CAPTS economist shares insights on agricultural exports

Carlos Zurita, senior research economist with NDSU's Center for Agricultural Policy and Trade Studies, presented "U.S. Trade Policy Shifts: Potential Implications for Agricultural Exports," as part of a two-part series on U.S. agriculture.

Learn more

Tell us what you would like to learn more about at ndsuniversityrelations@ndsu.edu.

Our mailing address is:

North Dakota State University PO Box 6050 University Relations Fargo, ND 58108-6050

Want to change how you receive these emails?

You can update your preferences or unsubscribe